

P DALAI

Brief CV

Dr P Dalai (M Phil & Ph D from University of Hyderabad, Hyderabad) has been teaching here since 2005 and has research interest in the area of Island Diaspora (see www.Ebosco.com for my article), Young Adult Literature, Holocaust Literature (www.museindia.com), Dalit Literature (Orient Black Swan), Sexuality (forthcoming from Cambridge Scholars), Nautical Literature, Children and Television, as well as Interdisciplinary Studies and Creative Pedagogy. As a teacher I experiment with innovative approaches such as creative enactment, painting, individual or seminar presentation, individual and group creative assignment, etc. along with digital helps such as PowerPoint and film screening in my class to teach my assigned courses. I have been teaching various courses here both at the Bachelor and Postgraduate levels such as: Renaissance, Jacobean Tragedy, Poetic Drama of T. S. Eliot and W B Yeats, New literatures in English from Canada, Australia and Nigeria (my lectures on teaching assignments available @ academia.edu), besides my Research Methodology assignment with the Pre-Ph D class. I have also the experience of supervising Doctoral students in the area of Postcolonial literature, Diaspora, North Eastern Literature in India, and Nautical literature. My forthcoming book Modernity and Provincial Writing (ISBN 978-93-80761-92-3) is due to be released in 2016.
